

The Office of the Campus Writing Coordinator Presents

Communication across the Curriculum,

A Discussion Series.

The Internet, digital media tools, and social gaming environments are part of broad-based shifts in how young people produce and access knowledge, and connect with others. This new media ecology can be a powerful driver of meaningful learning, but in our research, we found that very few youth, parents, and educators take advantage of its potential. Tapping into the potential of today's new media environment requires building more robust connections between formal and informal learning environments, and across social, recreational, and academic activities. How can we better support these linkages?

Tuesday February 18
3:00 - 4:30 p.m.
Humanities Gateway 1030

Professor Mimi Ito
Director, Digital Media and Learning Research Hub, UCHRI

"Connected Learning and Literacy"

RSVP to Iveta Cruse at icruse@uci.edu